LEGAL WRESTLING MATCH

Much Discussion Over Amended Declarations in County Court.

Attorneys for City of Burlington in Leary Negligence Case Ask for Verdict and Battle Royal Follows.

In the $25,000 damage suit against the city for the death of John A. Leary, alleged to have been electrocuted through negligence in connection with the city's electric light business, yesterday's session turned out to be a legal wrestling match.

The trial of legal strength commenced about the middle of the morning when the plaintiff's side completed the introduction of evidence in county court and asked leave to amend its declaration in a number of particulars.

The city's legal array was in action in a minute demanding that the changes be denied. The judge excused the city. It was argued that these proposed changes amounted to a new cause of action so that to allow them would allow the plaintiff to begin all over again and having fallen down in one action take a chance on another. It was insisted that such a shift was not only outside the provisions of the statute authorizing amendments, but would be unfair to the defendant who at some labor and expense had prepared to meet the case as allowed by the declaration.

Attorney Henry Conlin, arguing for the plaintiff, cited many precedents to prove that similar alterations in the pleadings had been allowed before. He read the charges asked for and told why they did not involve such a monstrous change of front as the defendant was inclined to fear. "They were merely amplifications of what appeared in the first declaration," he insisted, "and designed to ascertain objections, which the other side had raised."

The court decided that the amendments might be allowed and granted the defense an exception. After the plaintiff's request had been thrashed over, the lawyers to the defense started something on their side, by demurring to the declaration in its form and content. The court overruled the demurrer.

Having fallen short of a legal stranglehold, the attorneys for the city of Burlington tried a hammer-swing in the form of a motion to dismiss the declaration on the ground that the plaintiff failed to show that the city was liable for the death of Leary. This motion was valiantly contested. But the court overruled it, allowing another exception.

By way of attempting the toe-hold, as it were, the defendant next asked to have a verdict directed in its favor. On this motion there ensued a battle royal in which proceedings were hurried back and forth, a great amount of hearing was thrown around the field. The outcome of this contest was left undecided. After Attorney Warren R. Austin had argued long and cogently, and reviewed the evidence from the city's point of attack, Attorney V. A. Bullard made a telling argument for the plaintiff, which lasted until time of adjournment.

At the first of the day the plaintiff called a number of witnesses to add a word to testimony they had already submitted and after being cross-examined briefly by the other side, they were excused. The first of these witnesses was G. H. Almon, the electric expert for the plaintiff. Mr. Almon answered a long hypothetical question involving the cause and the manner of death of Mr. Leary. A sharp contest of wits ensued when the cross-examining attorney attempted to trap him in some statement inconsistent with his earlier testimony. To all appearances Mr. Almon managed to keep his feet clear. Dr. Dalton and Mr. Andrews were also recalled and questioned briefly.

OBITUARY

Dr. J. W. Postbauer.

Dr. Joseph William Postbauer, who came to this city from Boston a week ago, died suddenly Monday morning at 7:15 in his room at the New Sherwood hotel. An autopsy was performed Tuesday afternoon in Dwyer's undertaking room, and the cause of death was given out as acute pneumonia.

Dr. Postbauer, who has a record of 20 years of successful professional work, was 49 years old last July. With Mrs. Postbauer and their daughter, Miss Mildred Postbauer, he came to Burlington with the intention of making his home for the present at 21 South Union street. It was said Monday that on the death of his credentials he had received medical and pharmaceutical licenses in Vermont, and that he intended to assume the duties of a professor.

Just before leaving for Burlington, it is said, he slipped while in the bathtub and was severely injured. Since the accident he has suffered much pain, and while at the hotel he was attended at various times by several physicians. Dr. Henry L. Wilber was called at one o'clock Monday morning and administered treatment, and shortly before seven o'clock Dr. Postbauer was seized with the attack which resulted in his death before the arrival of medical aid.

The autopsy was performed Monday afternoon, when Drs. Shea, Allen, Stone, Whitney, Beecher, Wilder and McGinnis were present, together with M. G. Leary of this city and John R. Kelley of Barre. The body was taken on the noon train Tuesday to Burlington. Dr. Postbauer's former home was in West Rutland, and he was well known in this vicinity by several persons in this vicinity who knew of his ability, and possessed a personality of uncommon charm. It is said that during his entire career he never issued a death certificate upon a case of his own. His home was in Weston, Mass., and his winter residence was at Commonwealth avenue and Stratford road, Boston.

His professional record was as follows: College of Physicians and Surgeons, Columbia University, 1894; Vanderbilt clinic, department of gynecology, 1895 to 1898; Trinity hospital staff, 1898 to 1899; former assistant professor, Milwaukee Medical College, surgeon Cosmopolitan hospital, surgeon Bedford hospital, Charing Cross hospital, London, England, 1897 to 1899. Specialties: gynecology and surgery. He was surgeon for the Massachusetts state charities and had a private hospital.

Mrs. Postbauer was formerly Miss Grace M. Hoover of Baltimore.

William L. Winter, a resident of this city for many years, died Sunday afternoon about 2:30 o'clock at his apartment in The Richardson.

Mr. Winter, who was 61 years of age last March, had been in poor health for the past few years. Presumably he had been a traveling salesman and was for a time with the Dana Hardware company of Boston. His health compelled him to give up his work.

Mr. Winter was survived by his wife, one daughter, Mrs. Lyman C. Ward, Jr., of this city, by a brother, Edward Winter, of Los Angeles, Calif., and by several half-siblings.

The funeral services were held privately Tuesday afternoon at 2:30 at the apartment, and the interment was in Lake View cemetery.

Mrs. Sarah Lamora, died Monday morning at the Albany hospital. She was in her 66th year and had been in poor health for five years. She was the daughter of the late Charles LaFontaine, for many years a resident of Hinesburg. She was the widow of John Lamora, whose death occurred 17 years ago.

Mrs. Lamora was survived by one sister, Mrs. Frank G. White, of 25 Maple street, and by two brothers, Charles LaFontaine of Boston and Joseph, who lives in the West.

The funeral was held Wednesday morning at nine o'clock at St. Joseph's Church and the interment was made in the family lot in Mt. Calvary cemetery. Mrs. Lamora was a woman of excellent character and her death is regretted.

Mrs. Hannah A. Sager, died suddenly Tuesday morning of apoplexy, being found by her husband, Ernest Sager, with whom she lived at 22 South Willard street. Mrs. Sager was about 50 years of age. She is survived by three brothers, Donald, Patrick and John Kennedy, and by one sister, Mrs. Katherine Madigan, all of this city. Mrs. Sager was born at Limerick, Ireland, and came to this country when she was a child, and practically all of her life was spent in this city. The remains have been taken to the home of her sister, Mrs. Madigan, at 29 East avenue. The funeral will be held this morning at ten o'clock at St. Mary's Cathedral and burial will be in St. Joseph's cemetery.

Mrs. Joseph Paquette, died early Tuesday morning of apoplexy, being found by her husband, Joseph Paquette, at her home on Intervale avenue, aged 71 years. She had been ill with heart trouble. The funeral will be held this morning at nine o'clock at St. Joseph's Church, and the interment will be in Mt. Calvary cemetery.

Mrs. Paquette is survived, besides her husband, by seven children: Lizzie, Trofies, Amy, Arthur, Alexander, Louella and John R., by her mother, Mrs. Charles Parent, and by two brothers, Charles of this city and Ernest of Worcester, Mass.

Hiram Cushman, 36 years of age, died Tuesday night at the residence of his daughter, Mrs. J. N. Jones, 27 Main street, where he had made his home for many years. Mr. Cushman was the son of Russell Cushman and Julia (Dewey) Cushman, and was born at Georgia, September 12, 1877. He is survived, besides his daughter, by one brother, Ernest H. Cushman, of Georgia. The funeral will be held at his late home at 11 a. m. today with prayer and burial service at the cemetery at Georgia East Place at 2:30 p. m.

Peter Gadhue, died early Tuesday morning from the effects of a shock. He was 65 years of age. Mr. Gadhue is survived by four children: Mrs. Fred Howard, Fred Gadhue and Miss Margaret Gadhue, all of Burlington. The funeral will be held this morning at nine o'clock at St. Mary's Cathedral and interment will be in St. Joseph's cemetery.

Richard J. Bacon, the infant son of Mr. and Mrs. Charles R. Bacon of 21 South street, died yesterday afternoon at five o'clock. The funeral will be held privately this afternoon, with burial in Mt. Calvary cemetery.

The funeral of the two-months-old son of Mr. and Mrs. M. L. Hunt of 55 North Winthrop avenue, whose death occurred Tuesday morning, was held yesterday afternoon at three o'clock at St. Joseph's Church. Interment was in Mt. Calvary cemetery.

Charles Grossett, aged 64 years, died early Sunday morning of diabetes. The body was taken Monday morning to his late home at Westport, N. Y., for the funeral and interment.

Good Sport Promised for Riverside Park That Day.

It now becomes apparent that a real horse race will be held at Riverside Park on October 4. At that time all of the horses will be back from the fairs and as the track is in excellent condition, there is no doubt that the "going will be good." Among the features will be a race for the green horses in this part of the State and a truckman's and hackman's race.

A 25 class will take in the green horses, and prizes of $5, $5 and $250 will be given. In the 250 class the blankets will range downward from $10 in value. The races are all open to both trotters and pacers and the fastest of these will be the 250. A Star Pointer harness will be shown up in this class and following that will be a set of hobbles for second money and a blanket for third prize.

There will be plenty of entries and new names are being received daily at Johnson's stable on St. Paul street. Among the horses who will show up in this class are Grand Ole, Billy Howard of Plattburgh, Baby Ruth of Essex Junction, Judge Swing of Grand Isle and many others. Some runners will be in evidence and a fast half mile will be accomplished by them.

Billy Miller, who was the late James Jones's favorite of all his string, will probably be present and will take part in a half mile race. He has a mark of 2:14 and has done lots of things faster than that. It is guaranteed that there will at least be four races on the afternoon of the horse meet.

HOPKINS HALL REOPENS TO-DAY

Girls' School at Rock Point in Running Order Again.

Reception Last Evening by Bishop Hall and Miss Ogden, the New Principal—Changes in Building during Year.

Preliminary to the reopening this afternoon of Hopkins hall, the school for girls at Rock Point, a reception was given there last evening by the Rev. A. C. A. Hall, bishop of the diocese, and Miss Ellen Seton Ogden, who is to be the principal of the school. There was a good attendance of those interested in the institution and in the general subject of education. The guests were received by Bishop Hall, Miss Ogden, and Mrs. C. Y. Jones, Mrs. Lyman Allen, Mrs. J. L. Hills and Mrs. M. D. Chittenden, the wives of the trustees of the school.

Presiding at the table in the dining room, where refreshments were served, were Miss Waldo, who is to teach French, and Miss Barber, who is to have charge of Latin. Flowers added to the natural attractiveness of the rooms, all of which were thrown open for the inspection of the guests.

The students, who will number about 20 at first, will gather at the hall this afternoon and school work will begin tomorrow morning, but there will be no public exercises. The girls' weekly holiday will be Monday, instead of Saturday as is the custom in most schools.

THE RENOVATED BUILDING.

During the past year, following the securing of the $10000 endowment fund which Bishop Hall considered necessary in order to reopen the school, repairs and alterations costing about $3000 have been made on the school building. These changes consist largely of new plumbing, installation of electric lights, painting, repapering, the exterior of the building remaining as before. There are accommodations for about 30 boarders, including the dining room, the kitchen, the library and the reading room.

The building was erected in 1887. It is of about the same size as the Institute, but in a different style of architecture, with steep roof, gables, a cupola, and a central tower over the state projection. The side wings have the upper story treated in shingles. It is constructed of a variety of red marble, quarried near the spot.

At one end of the first story is the school room. On one side is a large glass cabinet filled with scientific apparatus, the gift of two nuns, including everything necessary for the study of physics and biology, while the chemical laboratory below is equally well equipped, and by the same generous ladies. The center of the first floor is a large drawing room, commanding views of lake and mountains. On one side of it is a door leading into a smaller room, and on the other an opening into the library and reading room. Other rooms on this floor are the manager's room and the principal's private rooms.

At the opposite end of the building from the school room is the chapel. It is furnished with a pipe organ operated by a hydraulic motor. On this floor also is situated the chemical and botanical laboratories.

The second floor and most of the third is divided into rooms for young ladies students. They combine methods found in different schools, single rooms and three or four beds. The latter comprise three rooms, a study parlor with sleeping rooms on either side.

In the basement, entirely above ground on three sides, is the dining room, with seats for 25. Under the school room is the gymnasium where regular exercises will be held in physical culture and where dancing classes will meet, opening from this room are several practice rooms for piano pupils.

The teaching staff will be as follows: Ellen Seton Ogden, the Rev. Henry Mawer, principal and teacher of English and sacred studies, and A. Redburn, Latin, Greek, and French. A. H. B. Brown, French and history, Anna H. Beer, A. M., classical mathematics and science, Mary Johnson Read, N. S. Bedford Normal school intermediate class, Mrs. Mrs. Elliott Kinsey, Ponce gymnasium physical training, Lucy W. Torrey, art and art history, Ruth Ransom, piano and harmonium, Alfred Larsen, violin, Alice Anthony, A. B., (Miss Mawer) in charge of the house.

ACROSS MT. STERLING.

A beautiful and commanding peak has been made accessible by the activity of the Sterling Mountain section of Johnson. A trail now leads from Johnson to Whiteface, the north peak of this three-peaked mountain, and from here is continued south to the middle peak, Morse's. Here the trail ends for the present, but it is to be continued to the south peak, Warren's, and from there to the Long Trail which has reached Sterling pond from Barre's camp in Smugglers' Notch. The opportunity to cross Sterling mountain is given by a wood-road leading from Whiteface to Morse's mills at the Cambridge end of Smugglers' Notch.

Word comes from Johnson that the changing foliage will soon be at its best. The excursion will take place next Saturday, leaving Burlington by the Burlington & Lamplite train at 7:30 a. m. On arriving at Johnson, carriages may be taken to the trail, 2 1/2 miles, to save time and energy. A picnic lunch will be eaten on the summit. The trail to Morse's mills is fairly rough and takes three hours to cover. Arrangements will be made to have carriage meet those who cross the mountain at Morse's mills to connect with the 7:04 p. m. train for Burlington, probably giving time for supper at Jeffersonville. The last stage can return to Johnson, taking the same train at 9:39 p. m., arriving at Burlington at 8:40 p. m.

Sterling mountain is one of the high peaks of Vermont, about 4000 feet elevation, and is worthy of a more intimate knowledge, but its nearness to Mount Mansfield has left this fine peak comparatively unknown. The mission of the Green Mountain club is to make all of the interesting mountains accessible. Those who see its interesting outlines and commanding northern view when its slopes are clad in autumn foliage on a cool, clear September day will have a trip worth remembering.

Any further information may be obtained from the Rev. E. A. Hazen of Johnson or Louis J. Farris, M. D., 24 South Union street, Burlington.
